

Manager of Franklin Park Shares Background, Plans

by Mary Willis Clarke

So how do you become the public face of a 2,877-unit prominent but troubled apartment complex? Debbie Dillon, executive vice president of Fieldstone Properties and senior executive located full-time on-site at Franklin Park at Greenbelt Station (formerly Empirian Village/Springhill Lake), appears to have been preparing for the job during her whole career.

In 1986 Dillon began as property manager for 100 apartment units. She went on to spend 10 years in Dallas, Texas, working as a real estate pension fund advisor helping large pension funds to invest in multi-family properties. She then transitioned from hands-on property management to the investment/financial side of a company responsible for 35 properties with 40,000 units. As an investment manager she became acquainted with the principals of Fieldstone Properties. Fieldstone Properties sought financial backing from pension funds advised by her company to acquire eight projects with 2,300 units in Tampa, Fla.

In overseeing her clients' investment in the Fieldstone complexes, Dillon got to know the people behind Fieldstone. She was impressed with the Fieldstone executives. "Joe and Ralph (Kazarnovsky and Reider, principals of the firm) are men of such integrity," she says. She describes them as long-term investors whose approach included

Artful Afternoon Offers "Speechless" Performance

The November Artful Afternoon program will be held at the Community Center on Sunday, November 7 from 1 to 4 p.m.

Art Crafts

From 1 to 2:30 p.m. there will be a word art project led by Artist-in-residence Kathy Karlson. A painter and poet, Karlson will help participants create visual art works integrating written language. Even children who don't yet write can have fun collaborating with a parent in this activity.

Dance

At 2:30 p.m. Greenbelt choreographer Angella Foster and Alight Dance Theater will share with the Greenbelt community the new production "Speechless," which was commissioned for performances by the Kennedy Center. Weaving together dance, gesture, text and live music, Speechless explores the struggle of parents of special needs children with communication issues to care for and understand their silent child in an increasingly noisy world. Inspired by her niece, Foster uncovered during her research that "the ability to communicate is in itself a 'most basic need.'" Alight Dance Theater creates performance events which celebrate the power of story and inspire others to be compassionate viewer-participants in their communities. After the performance, those present will be invited to join in fun dance activities with the company.

About the premiere of Speechless at the Kennedy Center, Foster says, "It went really well. And we're excited about giving (it) a new life at Greenbelt on November 7." Foster moved to Greenbelt just before Christmas 2007. She established Alight Dance Theater in January this year. The dance company rehearses at the Greenbelt Community Center and is a city recognition group. Foster met mixed-media artist Jessica Braiterman, who created sculptures for use in Speechless

Local Democrats True to Form; Give Most Candidates 85 to 87%

by James Giese

If Greenbelters were turned off by incumbents this year as is supposed to be the case in much of the country, they didn't show it by voting for opponents. Unofficial election results for the five Greenbelt precincts indicate that Governor Martin O'Malley defeated his opponent, former Governor Robert Ehrlich, by a greater margin than he did four years ago. In fact, he obtained more votes than before even though voter turnout at the polling places was slightly less. Senator Barbara Mikulski defeated her opponent by a greater margin than Senator Benjamin Cardin defeated his opponent four years ago. State Comptroller Peter Franchot also defeated his opponent by a greater margin than the last time. The one exception was Congressman Steny Hoyer who did slightly less well than in the past two elections, percentage-wise, but still garnered a whopping 86 percent against this year's opponent.

County Councilmember Ingrid Turner did not have an opponent four years ago and did this year. While challenger Fiona Moodie did garner 13 percent of the vote, Turner still received a higher percentage in Greenbelt than any other challenged candidate.

School Board

In the only non-partisan election on the ballot, Greenbelt school board candidate Peggy Higgins handily beat challenger Mark Cook, gaining 69 percent of the Greenbelt vote. Interestingly, Cook obtained 24 more votes than Higgins at Springhill Lake Elementary School (Franklin Park). A flyer distributed late in the campaign indicated that Cook had received an endorsement from the Democratic Party, which was not the case. Early Wednesday county tallies indicated that Higgins was winning the district by a two-to-one margin.

While Greenbelt voter registration is not available, turnout on Tuesday was slightly down from the last gubernatorial election. However, with more liberal absentee voting requirements and the introduction of early voting this year, the drop at the polls might be due to more Greenbelters voting early. Using 2008 unofficial registration numbers as a base figure, voter turnout at the polls this year was 39 percent, 78 percent for the presidential election and 43 percent for 2006.

County vs. City

As Greenbelt went, so did the county, more or less. O'Malley garnered a slightly higher percentage county-wide as did Franchot and Mikulski. Hoyer did appear to have done better in Greenbelt as did Turner. Throughout the councilmanic district Moodie gained more than 20 percent of the vote, while in Greenbelt she achieved only 13 percent.

Annual Pumpkin Poll Winner Is Gov. O'Malley

by Doug Love

As ever, I sit on my front porch with a big bowl of chocolate eyeballs on Halloween, give the kids a piece of candy each, then try to scare them by asking, “If you could vote next Tuesday, who would you vote for?” Of course, registered voters aren’t allowed to participate in this poll. To help the would-be voters this year, I carved three of the gubernatorial candidates into my large western Maryland pumpkin. A white mold first accented Maria Allwine’s hair, then turned black and covered her face and by Halloween weekend had attacked Gov. O’Malley. The pumpkin then split open and began oozing onto the pumpkin of my puppy below it, so it was difficult to use either as a positive visual aid. I was told that Gov. Ehrlich’s face did not contract the mold because he was already corrupt but I don’t want to mislead the public. Yes, I’m the one that said it.

With 13 votes, Governor O’Malley led perennial favorites

“I don’t know” and (no answer), with “Thank you” running in fourth place. Green candidate Allwine tied with Ehrlich with three votes each, ahead of President Obama, vampires and “going on airplanes.”

As usual, there were many interesting single votes. Pres. Lincoln voted for Zombies but one of his friends voted for him. The Devil voted for Lollar, responding to road signs. Other perennial candidates included Mickey Mouse, Mommy and wolves. New (to me) candidates included Linnaea, Princess Peach, “A Ghost In The Woods,” Jessica, “The Best Guy,” The Retsons and Eye Ball, by someone who took several. It was surprising to me that nobody voted for Mikulski, Hoyer, me, the puppy or The Pumpkin. I got cold and closed the polls at 8:17 p.m., although there were still goblins roaming the streets. I think they were out campaigning for the candidates running on Tuesday.

GCAN to View “Home,” Discuss Wind on Wed.

The next Greenbelt Climate Action Network (GCAN) meeting will be held on Wednesday, November 10 at 7 p.m. in Room 114 at the Greenbelt Community Center and will include a showing of the video “Home,” beginning promptly at 7 p.m., followed by a presentation about the future of wind energy in Maryland.

“Home,” with aerial footage from 54 countries, depicts how the Earth’s problems are interlinked. Scientists say there are only 10 years left to change the way people live, avert the depletion of natural resources and the catastrophic evolution of Earth’s climate. The video itself was conceived as a mobilization message to all people. Those unable to attend can view the video at <http://www.home-2009.com>.

The Chesapeake Climate Action Network and others including Environment Maryland, the Maryland League of Conservation Voters, Sierra Club and the National Wildlife Federation are spearheading a campaign to pass an offshore wind bill in the 2011 Maryland General Assembly that would bring offshore wind to the state by 2015.

The presentation will cover all basic questions about the benefits and challenges of bringing offshore wind to Maryland, as well as what people can do to help plug the state into this resource. More information is available about Maryland Citizens Conference on Offshore Wind Power at www.marylandoffshorewind.org.

Seeing Is Believing

In the front page article on October 21 the headline boldly reads “Fieldstone Acquires and Renames Empirian Village as Franklin Park.”

I occupy one of these apartments and I know that there are other residents who will share my view of how badly maintained these apartments are. Not the fault of the new owners.

Responses to residents’ calls of leaky taps, faulty door locks and irregular notifications about their rental status has been slow in coming. Is it a rule that the carpeting only gets changed if a tenant moves out?

People who live in these apartments are expecting the company concerned to maintain the apartments in such a way that the residents feel satisfied to live there.

The onus is now on you “Fieldstone” to make us proud to be residents of “Franklin Park” and to add a whole new meaning to living in one of these apartments.

Sheron Jess

THANKS!

Many thanks to the Greenbelt Library staff for providing their reliable and congenial service in the mini-library during the branch’s renovation. Also to the city, not only for providing the space but for extending the stay beyond the initial terms.

Those of us who are shamelessly addicted to our library are most appreciative.

On Screen

Facing Up & Double Trouble

Two new films split the week starting Friday, November 5 at Old Greenbelt Theatre. Running through Tuesday is “The Social Network”; on Wednesday and Thursday “Morning Glory” debuts.

“Network” is a docudrama that tracks the recent birth and vertiginous growth of the Internet’s Facebook, via which a half-billion “friends” around the globe now can message one another electronically. Writer Aaron Sorkin and director David Fincher, drawing on the book “The Accidental Billionaires,” whip along from 19-year-old Harvard sophomore Mark Zuckerberg (Jesse Eisenberg) who got it all going to the wide-ranging buildup and fallout that has followed – and what it signifies.

“Morning Glory” features newly-hired producer Becky Fuller (Rachel McAdams) taking on a pair of feuding morning TV talk show hosts (Harrison Ford and Diane Keaton). Director Roger Michell stirs the comedic plot with Jeff Goldblum as network honcho and Patrick Wilson as Becky’s beset boyfriend.

Both films are PG-13. “Network” is 121 minutes, “Glory” 107 minutes. (FYI: Six earlier films going back to 1933 and a TV series have been titled “Morning Glory.”)

Synagogue Rummage Sale Sunday-Monday

Mishkan Torah Synagogue’s annual rummage sale will be held on Sunday, November 7 and Monday, November 8 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Begun over 30 years ago, it has become a tradition with repeat customers showing up early for the best finds and great prices.

Barbara Shansby, the organizer for the past few years, says she is amazed at the amount of rummage one relatively small synagogue can produce each year. Many hours are spent during the two weeks leading up to the sale sorting, organizing and pricing.

Unsold merchandise is donated to a local charity. This year the collection includes designer clothing for women, fur coats and jackets, sets of dishes, cutlery and pots, clothing and shoes for adults and children, toys, artwork, books, household items and electronics.

Mishkan Torah is located at 10 Ridge Road. Call 301-474-4223 for more information.

Exploring Cold War Thaw in Antarctica

On Friday, November 12 the theme for Explorations Unlimited will be Antarctic sailors, scientists and a Cold War thaw 50 years ago, as historian Dian Olson Belanger shares the story of how pioneering scientists from 12 nations in the late 1950s began a systematic probe of the secrets of Antarctica’s ice. Sailors braving Earth’s most hostile, unknown environment built and maintained a complex infrastructure to make the science possible.

Together, their scientific, logistical and political success in the depths of the Cold War led to the Antarctic Treaty of 1959, which dedicated the entire polar continent to peace and the cooperative pursuit of science. Fifty years later, it still does.

After an illustrated talk, Belanger will be available to sign copies of her “Deep Freeze,” now in paperback. (“Deep Freeze: The United States, the International Geophysical Year and the Origins of Antarctica’s Age of Science,” University Press of Colorado, 2006). Belanger is an independent historian. Her first book, “Managing American Wildlife” (University of Massachusetts, 1988), won The Wildlife Society’s national book award in 1990.

Her second, “Enabling American Innovation: Engineering and the National Science Foundation” (Purdue University, 1998), opened the door to her passion for Antarctica.

Explorations Unlimited is held every Friday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center, Room 114. Everyone is welcome to attend and questions are encouraged. Call 301-397-2208 for more information.

altruism as well as financial acumen.

She says she was attracted by the opportunity to improve peoples’ quality of life and knew that if the right project came along with Kazarnovsky and Reider, she wanted to be part of it. When the call came asking her to come to Greenbelt for the newly named Franklin Park at Greenbelt Station, she left the job she had held for 10 years, as well as her horses and her Dallas ranch. She moved her family here for the position, which will require turning around a challenging project and upgrading conditions. She must manage the financial side as well.

Discoveries Here

After five months here, preparing since June for the Fieldstone takeover of Empirian Village, Dillon talked about pleasant surprises and disappointments. She is delighted with the massive Greenbelt property’s beauty in its layout and stands of trees.

She is also excited about the services and support available through the City of Greenbelt. She describes Celia Craze, Greenbelt director of Planning and Community Development, as “wonderful to work with” and not at all as described by the previous owners’ management team.

However, at the end of every day Dillon feels disappointed, she says, that she has not been able to accomplish more.

Dillon says Fieldstone wants to build a portfolio of rental properties in the Washington area. Their business plan involves buying basic apartments and upgrading them to provide clean, safe, affordable and “nice” housing for working families.

Fieldstone’s Mill Run project in Union, N.J., has just been recognized, she says, as the Garden State 2010 Best Managed Property by an industry group.

Dillon wants to assure residents that there is a new game in town. In addition to new signage, planting areas throughout the complex have been beautified with thousands of blooming pansies. Both flowers and signs were in place on the first full day under the new ownership.

Management will not overinvest in fancy externals, she says, but will spend on capital improvements to mechanical systems and roofs. Security lighting, cameras and emergency call boxes will also be installed.

Future plans include a new state-of-the-art fitness center, improvement of swimming pools and the lake area beautified. Renovations are planned for common areas such as entrances, stairwells and breezeway/hallways.

Interior Facelifts

Franklin Park has renovated two model apartments to show the planned upgrade of kitchens and bathrooms. In the kitchens maple cabinets look like those in IKEA model kitchens. Appliances are very nice – not the lowest builders’ grade – and the granite countertops gleam in light reflected from under-counter lighting.

The bathroom vanity counter is also granite and granite tiles surround the new bathtubs. Wood parquet floors in the models have been refinished to a beautiful shine – an impressive testament to the original quality of the almost 50-year-old flooring.

The apartments still have the large closets from the original floor plans and large windows still look out onto wooded common areas. But common areas leading to the models are somewhat tired and worn out but, as mentioned above, are part of the planned renovations throughout the project.

Dillon says the first units to be renovated will be the boarded-up, chain-link-fencing-surrounded apartments gutted by an October 2009 fire. She hopes to have construction finished by December 1. Construction documents are ready, she says, and there is a building permit for the work and bids are out. No construction has begun yet, however.

Last Words

When asked what message she would like to send to Franklin Park tenants, Dillon wanted residents to know that the new management will try their very best in managing the property. In a complex the age of Franklin Park, “Things will happen but we will do the right thing,” she says.

We were saddened to hear of the death on Wednesday, October 27, 2010, of Celeste MacMillan, longtime performer and friend of the Greenbelt Arts Center and former GAC board secretary.

Congratulations to:

– Air Force Reserve Airman First Class Douglas Surles, who graduated with honors from basic training at Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Texas. Surles, the son of Leslie Codelin of Mandan Road, was a 2006 graduate of ERHS.

– Paul and Cara Leisnham of Hillside Road, on the birth of their son Max Bernie, born on September 30, 2010. Little Max weighed in at 6 lbs., 7 oz. His grandmother, Caroline Marshall, traveled from New Zealand to Greenbelt to meet him!

A very happy 90th birthday to James A. Crandon on Saturday, November 6. He is to be honored by a special celebratory dinner with family this week.

Celebrate the Holidays With a Dazzling Smile

McCarl Dental Group

There has never been a better time to improve your smile! Adults are having their teeth straightened and brightened in unprecedented numbers. Our dental patients are thrilled with the beautiful straight smile Invisalign gives them with nearly invisible, clear removable trays. Invisalign can correct a wide variety of dental and orthodontic concerns and is more convenient, more comfortable and less expensive than metal braces. Invisalign is usually faster than traditional metal braces – some cases take only five months to correct fully. For most adults, Invisalign treatment is finished in less than a year. Invisalign is a great way to transform your smile without interfering with your day-to-day life.

If you are self-conscious about your smile or concerned about your dental and overall health because of crowded or crooked teeth, Invisalign orthodontics is a great solution. The clear, comfortable aligner trays straighten teeth and correct your bite just like metal braces – only almost no one else can tell you are wearing them. Dental hygienists endorse Invisalign because their dental patients take the clear trays out when they eat then brush and floss before replacing them. This keeps the gums healthy during treatment and helps prevent decay and tooth discoloration - potential problems with traditional braces. Invisalign is a great way to straighten teeth while maintaining excellent oral hygiene habits.

Many adults notice that their teeth shift with time, crowding and getting crooked – especially the lower front teeth. Even people who had braces as teenagers often experience relapse causing crooked or crowded teeth. Overall gum and bone health are improved when teeth fit together with an ideal bite. When teeth are properly aligned, the gums fit tighter around the teeth, enhancing periodontal health. Crowded and crooked teeth are harder to brush and floss causing plaque buildup, tooth decay and periodontal disease. When left untreated, missing or widely spaced teeth can prevent normal chewing and increase the likelihood of periodontal disease and bone loss. Misaligned teeth and jaws can cause abnormal wear on teeth and painful jaw joint problems including TMJ syndrome.

Benefits Of Straight Teeth Include:

- Improved bite, chewing and wear patterns of the teeth
- Increased ability to clean the teeth
- Improved long-term health of gums and teeth
- A more attractive smile

There are advantages to selecting an Invisalign Preferred Provider who is also experienced in other forms of cosmetic dentistry. Dentists who have comprehensive dental training can address multiple dental concerns with a wide range of dental solutions that are specific to each dental patient’s unique needs and objectives. Invisalign Orthodontics is often combined with other dental treatments including whitening, dental implants, porcelain veneers and crowns. Because misaligned bites and crooked teeth can contribute to other health problems, Invisalign orthodontics may be covered by your dental insurance.

GAC Restroom Mission Seeks Community Support

by Joan Jacobs

The campaign to renovate the restrooms in the Greenbelt Arts Center (GAC) has reached $19,000 out of an overall goal of $50,000. For its members and friends the goal was set at $10,000.

Of that sum, $6,000 has already been donated by people who value the theater’s close-to-home offerings and its reasonable prices – $15 for adults and $12 for seniors and students for non-musical events. GAC is grateful for the help of the following Greenbelt supporters: Prince George’s County Councilwoman Ingrid Turner, District 4 Fund ($2,500); Greenbelt Homes, Inc. ($500); and Greenbelt Community Foundation ($5,000).

The condition of the restrooms is such that the theater’s board of directors concluded that their complete reconstruction was necessary to insure the theater’s continued existence. More than renovation the project’s goal is to make the rooms accessible.

Greenbelt’s disabled residents and visitors can thus both attend and participate. They can be actors, artists, costumers, directors, producers, sound and lighting designers, box office volunteers and, of course, members of the audience.

Now in its 31st season of varied live-theater offerings, rotating exhibits of art by local artists in its lobby and concerts by musical groups, such as The Chromatics from Goddard Space Flight Center and the Celtic Ceilidh Band, GAC has a history of quality entertainment. GAC also hosts a youth theater camp and has been a site for the Utopia Film Festival. It also participates in the Labor Day Festival and the Festival of Lights by staffing food booths supplied by goodies created by Chef Lou Parker.

Because GAC’s mailing list cannot reach everybody in Greenbelt who has an interest in the theater, the Restroom Rescue Committee has hopes to reach the city’s whole population, seeking its support in securing the remaining $4,000 of the $10,000 goal set for members and friends.

Contributions can be made by check to Greenbelt Arts Center, P.O. Box 293, Greenbelt, MD 20768. “Restroom Rescue” should be entered on the memo line of checks.

Joan Jacobs is the chair of Restroom Rescue.

What happens when a person dies?

Sooner or later you will have to deal with this question. How will you answer? As Christians we have the answer! For those who confess their faith in Jesus Christ, they will be with their Lord in heaven. Shortly before Jesus died on the cross, He told the thief next to him, “Today you will be with Me in Paradise” (Luke 23:43). What Paradise will look like or what we will look like in Heaven is a mystery that God will make clear to us someday. But for now, we know that All who confess their faith in Jesus will experience a new life with Jesus in Heaven.

This Sunday, November 7th, Holy Cross Lutheran Church, will celebrate All Saints Sunday. On this day, we will remember those members, friends and neighbors who died in the faith within this past year. If you are still struggling over the loss of a loved one, please join us this Sunday and find the comfort and peace that Jesus can offer! “I am the Resurrection and the Life. Whoever believes in Me will never die”(John 11:25).

Foreign Press Visit Greenbelt

A busload of foreign press arrived at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, November 2 at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, Precinct 13, to view the American voting process. Members of the press interviewed the election judges amid the judges' efforts to help voters. At times, a judge reported later, it was chaotic. It was hard for her to say whether they were busy early in the morning with a lot of voters or just that there were a lot of people in the room. Members of the press were also talking with voters as they left the building.

The next stop for the foreign press corps was Montgomery County. The trip was sponsored by the State Department's "Diplomacy in Action" program.

When someone gets hurt, we take for granted those rescuing them will know quickly and precisely what to do.

If someone becomes injured in the deep bowl at the Greenbelt Skate Park – how will rescue teams get them out?

On Friday, October 29 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., seven fire and rescue units – Greenbelt, Beltsville, Branchville, College Park, Laurel, Calverton and Hyattsville – participated in a “Steep Angle Rescue” drill at Greenbelt Skate Park preparing for such an event.

But why Greenbelt in particular?

Recreation Department Director Joe McNeal summed it up this way: “Skate parks are like golf courses; every one of them has unique features skaters like to explore.”

Greenbelt’s advanced bowl, designed by skateboarder Tony Hawk’s architect, is known and used by skate boarders across the country. Its design allows skaters to soar 4 ½ feet over the top of the bowl when performing maneuvers at top speed.

To avoid liability, skaters using the park have to register and sign a waiver agreeing to follow park rules, skate within their ability level and have proper equipment when using the facility. Supported by recreation and police department enforcement, no major injuries have happened since the skate park opened.

If an accident does occur, the steep-angle rescue allows paramedics to access, stabilize, immobilize and remove the patient from the park within “the golden hour” – the point from which the person is injured to the time they receive surgery. When injured patients receive care within the first hour, their chances for full recovery go up considerably.

The steep-angle rescue involves immobilizing the injured person by strapping him onto a Miller Board (a 1-foot by 7-foot by 2-inch thick plastic board with slots cut into it) and strapping him either into a wire basket or a Sked stretcher – which looks like a giant orange toboggan with shoelaces. The basket or Sked stretcher is tied with a rope, then slid up a ladder to the rescue crews.

Why Training?

Sounds simple – why the need for training?

In reality the process is highly technical. The drill allows rescue teams both to master technique and practice the “what ifs” in the field. They focus on practicing and checking proper knot-tying techniques to counterbalance shifting; combining ropes, pulleys and knots to maximize leverage and minimize the weight each person pulls; and checking the proper ladder angle to allow for the smoothest transition possible. They also work with differing scenarios to prepare for the realities of the field.

Should a skater become injured, fire and rescue teams in this vicinity are ready to go. Those present at an injury can also help by remembering never to move an injured person: keep them still, inform the recreation staff and call 911.
